

Our trip to the enercity drinking-water experience path Grasdorf

On the 7th of November we went to the enercity drinking-water experience path Grasdorf near Laatzen. It was a really nice day but a bit wet too.

We met at our school at 8 o'clock and then we went to the tram.

We arrived at quarter past 9 at the drinking-water path.

We planned the way to walk and a few minutes later we started to explore the path in little groups of three.

There were different stations on the way with different topics. On each station was one QR-Code which we could scan to read the information of the stations.

We learned a lot about the production of our drinking-water in Hanover.

Now we can be sure that our water is definitely clean and tasty too.

We had a great day there!
